The Wreck of the Cleopatra.

(Written for the Advertiser.)
By S. FRANKLIN MCARDNER.

Away in the east, where the Atlantic's wave,
Tossed by the fury of the storm king's wrath,
Leaves foam with angry fury to the coast,
Each object placed upon its rugged path—
A graceful barque with white sails to the sea,
Shudders as she leaps from sea to sea,
Knowing not that she doth bear along
Her human freight unto eternity.

We see the fearless, seamen to the rigging cling,
 endeavoring to furl her shattered sail;
 Her yards, like human arms, embrace the sea,
 Hurled by the fury of the passing gale.
 A mighty struggle with the elements is waged,
 A deathlike silence on the beach doth reign;
 The Cleopatra's spar no more shall wave,
 Her masts and rigging lie in ruin on the plain.

And the waves her struggling seamen clasp,
 Is it a delusion, or do we see
 A lifeless monster in the storm king's grasp,
 Grappling the wheel with superhuman energy,
 Endeavoring to keep the barque before the storm?
 Right on her bow the seething breakers roll—
 Some supernatural power is there,
 Safe on the beach her shattered hull is borne,
 Her timbers groaning 'neath the ponderous storm.

The youthful form relaxes not its grasp,
 Upon the wheel now round and round it whirls,
 While through the silent watchers on the beach,
 Runs a shiver of deathlike chill.
 A slender form, of a maiden fair,
 Her dark brown tresses floating in the breeze,
 A stranger's arms do bear her to the beach,
 A stranger's lips kiss her marble brow.
 Even in death a smile o'erspreads her face,
 As o'er her form the silent mourners bow.
 We place her form 'neath the ponderous mound.

A wreath of roses placed on her breast;
 And all who witness her sad course,
 The Cleopatra's angel have doth rest.
 No more shall angry billows have her way,
 Or to her breast shall waves from sea to sea;
 Her spirit dwells throughout an endless day,
 In the tranquil realms of God's eternity.

Oh, the fires I've seen in the fire-land blue!
 The meteor-eyes that climb the dark steep,
 And burn the wandering dew-banks through,
 And rain the sparks of heaven's fire!
 But Oh! they faded, those spheres on high,
 As I gazed in the heaven of Midreid's eye.
 I've seen the blush in the pinking morn,
 In its soft laughter, rippling light,
 And the moomling dimples on the waters born—
 But Oh! I would the whole world die,
 To the frenzy die in Midreid's eye.

I've seen an old cathedral pile,
 Whose towers and spires and pinnacles,
 Like pyramids of fire, the while,
 As the evening fairies spun their spells.
 But Oh! I lay my vision's sight upon the die,
 As I caught the witches in Midreid's eye.
 I've seen the light impaled with dew,
 When the sunbeams did fondly linger,
 Where the mystic violets ever grew,
 But Oh! these charms which mortal were,
 Would I resign for the twinkly slay
 In that burning zone, Midreid's eye.

CHAS. AYERS MASON.
Breath on the seas that underlie,
 But Oh! she waned near Midreid's eye.
 I've seen the snowflake, dainty and white,
 Neath the kissing rays of the living light,
 Dance like glow-worm's wings in the night,
 As their fires enkindle every one.
 But Oh! I seek not the flashes that fly,
 To the frenzy die in Midreid's eye.

Oh, I've seen eyes of turquoise blue,
 Whose gleams shined out fondly and long,
 Where the mystic violets ever grew,
 But Oh! these charms which mortal were,
 Would I resign for the twinkly slay
 In that burning zone, Midreid's eye.

Echoes from the Alumni Meeting.
Prof. H. L. Russell, Owego Free Academy, Owego, N. Y., gave the following remarks in response to the toast, "Memories of School Life," at the banquet, Wednesday evening, of the Norway High Alumni:
"As I have sat here amid the gayeties and pleasures of this hour, I have remembered that it is not a time for musing or for musing about the past. No one enjoyed more deeply than myself the happiness that comes from greeting again the teachers and comrades of the years gone by; no one has delighted more to renew the associations of long ago, and none loved more to drink again of the healthful waters from the fountains of their youth. But amid all these happy, joyous thoughts I have reflected that there is a seriousness of feeling, that there comes a gravity of thought, and still it is as best we can, it still remains and rises up before us like Banquo's ghost, in all reunions such as these. I feel that there is a desire to make ourselves more loyal to our school, to devote ourselves more thoroughly to their duty to the state and the nation, to hold in view throughout all their several degrees. Is it not, I ask, with some feeling similar to this that we find ourselves assembled here in this hall, to-night?

We meet, to-night, as the loyal sons and daughters of one of the members of that vast sisterhood of schools that prepare not the hands but the millions for their duty to the state and the nation. And the question here arises,— "What is the school?" What do we mean by the Norway High School? For those who have been graduated during the last three years, it has a very different significance from what it has for graduates of former years. The graduates of the High School with the new building, down on yonder hill. The graduates of former years have the building which to which to associate the memories of the olden days. The old building with its sacred halls, with its shrubbery and trees, all vanished in the fearful fire. The tender memories, the spirit of the past, the soul that lives in the labors of her alumni living, the soul that survives in the achievements of her alumni dead, these make for us the real High School.

Far be it from my thoughts to disparage or in the least to slight the value of our college life. Four years I wandered amid the shades of Cambridge and sat in Harvard's classic halls, and I love her with the full devotion of a loyal son. One year I taught on soil where untiring allegiance was rendered unto Yale; and for the last five years, I have taught almost beneath the Commodore's flag. In those years, I have either breathed in the atmosphere of college life or have felt the breezes from the distant hills. I feel the richer and nobler influence of their higher thoughts, live it feebly as I may, but I also feel with the fervor of my life that their influence is the graft that is set within the tree, rather than the shapen trunk. The influence that arises from the school comes at such a period that it grows and forms a very essential fibre of the character. It is always gratifying to receive testimonials of the Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhea Remedy, and when the endorsement is from a physician it is especially so. "There is no more satisfactory or effective remedy than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhea Remedy," writes Dr. R. E. Robey, physician and pharmacist, of Olney, Mo., and as he has used the Remedy in his own family and sold it in his drug store for six years, he should certainly know. Everyday Methods of Canning Fruit.

Some busy worker may be glad to know some of the methods of canning as used by one of the workers.

I have heard complaints that the cultivated berries were not satisfactory. Perhaps it is not generally known that most growers of strawberries will gladly sort their berries and sell the smaller ones cheaper, while the purchasers will find that their jars will contain more fruit than juice if these are used. My rule is one cup of granulated sugar and two tablespoonsful of water to one quart of berries. I never cook more than four quarts of berries at once. They will boil up at the side of the kettle and in three times in this way, and I fill a little into each jar till all are full, thus equally dividing the berries. If the juice does not fill the jars a little water can be added. If a silver knife is run to the bottom of the jar, when withdrawn most of the air bubbles will disappear. I prefer the "Lightning" jars, still I have had friends say "my preserves do not keep well in them." If the wires do not snap as tight as I think they ought I slip several folds of paper under the top wire, and I have no further trouble; I find this is quite necessary after the jars have been used one or two years.

If any one in years past has had trouble in making jelly from ripe grapes try once more and use apple juice for the liquid instead of water. I cook any common apples and strain for jelly, adding this to the grapes; boil five minutes breaking the grapes as much as possible, straining carefully and add as many cups of hot sugar as you have of juice, as much cooking will destroy the color and fine flavor of the grapes. Perhaps everyone is not so fortunate as I, in having a luxuriant wild grape vine within twenty feet of their door and I have plenty with which to experiment. Last year I filled one pint jar with stemmed grapes adding one cup of sugar. I set it in cold water with cover laid lightly on and let it cook a few minutes after the water came to a boil. If necessary add a little more water to fill jar, bring the cover into place and seal. They proved satisfactory and I shall do more this year.

I wonder if the reader knows what an agreeable change a jar of spiced crab-apples will make when mixed with other kinds of pickles. Prepare two and one-half quarts of crab apples by removing the blossom end, leaving on the stems; lay in a deep dish—to save the juice—and set in a steamer; let them remain until this cover and they appear partly cooked. While these are steaming bruise one teaspoonful of Wood's mixed spices, after picking out the red and black peppers and allspice, and let this simmer ten minutes in one pint of good vinegar. Now add two cups of white sugar and at noon add the steamed apples with their juice and let them cook twenty minutes. If handled carefully they will remain whole after put in the jars and they will be found much better after having been put up some time.

Has the reader ever tried spiced jelly? If not, take one quart of apple juice prepared as for plain jelly, add one teaspoonful of ground cinnamon, ¼ teaspoonful cloves, a "dash" of black pepper, and let simmer ten minutes, then add equal amount of sugar and bring to a jelly as usual. This will be found an agreeable addition to a plate of cold meat.

The simplest way of testing jelly I have found is when turned from the spoon it will drop from the edge in three places at the same time it will be hard enough for tarts. I always want some a little softer for jelly-cake; it spreads so much better.

Closing Day at Chautauqua.
Thursday was the closing day at Chautauqua and Rev. Dr. Lindsey gave a recognition day address. The usual alumni dinner followed, after which brief addresses were made by several gentlemen. In the evening a grand concert was given by Gertrude Miller, soprano; Robert Hall, tenor; M. O. Seaman, basso; the cantata, "The Wreck of the Hesperus" forming the concluding part of the concert by the assembly chorus assisted by the soloists. The program was a long one, and the White Mountain excursions while others took the round river trip on the Saco. The programme has given excellent satisfaction, though the attendance has not been quite up to the usual average.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common water glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates a diseased kidney, and if the urine is cloudy, the urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT DO WE DO.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It cures the inability to hold one's goods, giving pain in passing it, or bad effects, following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle and pamphlet, both sent free by mail, mention OXFORD COUNTY ADVERTISER and send your full post-office address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors' inability to hold one's goods is guaranteed by the use of Swamp-Root. A hotel guest in a Maine city refused to occupy a room because it was uncomfortable. The clerk had the number of the room changed to 31 and the guest, thinking he had been given another room, was satisfied and ceased to worry about bad luck.

Mrs. F. M. Young and son Rodie are visiting in Lewiston.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas McKenney of Jamaica Plain, Mass., visited at S. R. Bradford's, last week.

Bradford Stuart and wife were at Summer, Saturday and Sunday, to visit her brother, Moses Merrill, who is very sick.

Austin Campbell, Harry Bearce, William Thomas and F. M. Young went on the excursion to Moosehead Lake, Sunday, and report a good time.

H. W. Bearce's dogs tried a coon, Saturday, July 20, about five p. m., in a swamp above Marshall Jones', and stayed at the tree until 9:30, Sunday morning, when Mr. Bearce went up and shot it. It was an old setter. He was shot deep. The dogs were pretty well used up for they had to stay in water all night. Mr. Bearce thinks they would have stayed another day before they would have given him up.

What Do the Children Drink?
Don't give them tea or coffee. Have you tried the new food drink called Grain-O? It is delicious and nourishing and takes the place of coffee. The more Grain-O you give the children the more health you distribute through their systems. Grain-O is made of pure grains, and when properly prepared tastes like the choice grains of coffee but costs about 1/2 as much. All grocers sell it. 15c. and 25c.

Wise Men Know
It is folly to build upon a poor foundation either in architecture or in life. A foundation of sand is insecure, and to build upon it is to build upon a dangerous and deceptive base. To build upon health is to make your blood pure, nourishing by taking Food's Sarsaparilla.

A Great Surprise in Store
For those who will go to-day, and get a package of GRAIN-O. It takes the place of coffee of about 1-4 the cost. It is a food drink, full of health, and can be given to the children as well as the adult with great benefit. It is made of pure grains and looks and tastes like the finest grades of mocha or Java coffee. It satisfies everyone. A cup of Grain-O is better for the system than a tonic, because its benefit is permanent. What coffee breaks down Grain-O does not. Ask your grocer for Grain-O. 1 lb. and 50c.

Death of Calvin Poole.
Calvin Poole, an aged and well known resident of Cambridgeport, died July 31, at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. A. R. Downing, with whom he had lived since coming to the city twenty years ago. He was 83 years, 8 months and 23 days old at the time of his death. Since living here he had been in quite feeble health, but had always been out more or less so that he was a well known figure on the streets until last January, at that time having to remain confined to the house. His favorite walk each day was from his home to the Manhattan market, where he found his son. Mr. Poole's long life began in the little town of Norway, Me., where he remained till he had arrived at young manhood. Subsequently he removed to Portland and remained there thirty years in the express business. He leaves a widow and five children, two sons and three daughters, all but one of whom are living in Cambridge. The funeral was held on Monday at two p. m., at the house, Rev. S. E. Bean of the Union Methodist church officiating. The interment was in the family lot at the Cambridge cemetery. Several very handsome floral remembrances came from the family and friends. [Cambridge Chronicle.]

Condensed Testimony.
Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a Cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Hemmings, 222 E. 28th St. Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Croup, because it instantly relieves. At the North Jay quarry of the Maine & New Hampshire Granite Co. may be seen the largest piece of granite ever taken out of that quarry and probably of any country. It contains over 2,000 cubic yards and weighs over 5,000 tons. Out of this piece of stone, which is clear and without a flaw, is to be cut a shaft 85 feet long, 60 feet wide and 8 feet thick, for a monument for a party in Texas. Among the large orders now being filled by the Company are the granite for the $250,000 R. G. Dunn sky scraper being erected in New York; the W. A. Clark monument for Woodlawn, N. Y.; the granite for the Detroit, Mich., court house which will cost $1,000,000. This will take 7,000 cubic feet of granite cut into about 5,000 stones; the Allegheny Bank building of Pennsylvania, which will take 25,000 cubic feet of stone; and for the statue of Dr. Boileau which is to be placed at Washington, D. C. The present force at the North Jay quarry alone is 300 men beside the carvers and general help, and this force will be enlarged to 600 men in a few weeks.

Boston Journal Leads.
It is the Only Boston Paper to Make a Permanent Feature of Photographic Pictures.
It has remained for the Boston Journal to be the only Boston paper to retain as a permanent feature the superb illustrated supplement filled with photographic pictures, which it originated and has maintained for three years with so great success. The conspicuous excellence of the Boston Sunday Journal's illustrations has started many imitations in other papers, but no one has succeeded in getting the excellent effect obtained by the Journal, and has abandoned the rivalry in despair. Throughout the summer the Journal's illustrated supplements have been especially interesting. For example, one issue was entirely devoted to the beauties of Boston and its suburbs; another presented pictures and scenes of special interest to all connected with midsummer sports; a third showed some of the most attractive summer resorts of New England, and a summer schools, wildmen, horsemen and others all come in for their special numbers. Still more attractive novelties in this line are in preparation by the Journal for the coming season, so that it will continue its reputation as the finest illustrated and the best Sunday newspaper in New England.

Hon. John A. Roberts of Norway and Hon. A. P. Gordon of Fryeburg, will be candidates for the Governor's council in 1899, when Oxford county again has this official.

Last Friday afternoon, a man came into this place, a stranger, and went into the Mt. Abram Hotel. She asked him what he wanted there and he told her he was expecting some lady friends on the next train that was nearly due and was looking for the ladies' waiting room. Not thinking anything wrong she showed him the way to the room and went to her work in the kitchen. It appears that as soon as the girl left him, he went into the room occupied by Mr. Demerit, the engineer, and with false keys opened the door and found a pocketbook containing $50. Virginia is making large quantities of six inch skewers with Abbott's new skewer machine.

A. C. King and Chas. Hutchins, while coming from the Hill, last Thursday evening, heard a cross coming at a great pace just as they were crossing Alder River bridge. They turned out to see the driver, who kept their side of the road.

Just as they were close to King's team, the horse shied a little to their right so that the fore wheels of each carriage came on the high side wheel. Their team was much heavier and escaped uninjured.

King's whiffletree and shafts were broken and the harness badly broken. While King was getting out of the tangle, they drove off and left him without any inquiry and without making known their names. But their names are known and we understand they'll have a chance to foot the bills or do worse.
